

Tennessee Primary Care Association Names Angel Moore, Esq. as Chief Executive Officer

Nashville, TN – The Tennessee Primary Care Association (TPCA) Board of Directors has named Angel Moore, Esq. as its next Chief Executive Officer, effective March 16, 2026. Her appointment follows a national search led by UHC Solutions. Ms. Moore was selected from a highly qualified group of leaders across healthcare and executive management.

Ms. Moore brings more than two decades of experience in executive leadership, community health operations, and primary care delivery. She previously served as Vice President and Chief Executive Officer of Erlanger Community Health Centers, guiding one of Chattanooga’s largest federally designated safety net providers. Under her direction, the organization expanded access to high-quality, patient-centered primary care and achieved significant growth in both performance and financial stability. She was also promoted to Vice President of Population Health for the broader health system, a multibillion-dollar regional safety net and the area’s largest academic health system.

Her earlier roles include serving as Chief Operating Officer and Legal Counsel for a major Michigan health center and holding executive positions within a multisite health network providing primary care, dental, pharmacy, vision, and specialty services. Throughout her career, she has helped health centers strengthen operations, advance quality, and build collaborative partnerships at the local, state, and federal levels.

“Ms. Moore brings a strong track record of exceptional leadership and a deep understanding of the community health center mission,” said Laura Harris, President of the TPCA Board of Directors. “Her experience leading health center growth and advocating for health centers at the local, state, and federal levels makes her exceptionally well-suited to lead TPCA and advance Tennessee’s health centers and the communities they serve.”

As CEO, Ms. Moore will guide TPCA’s work to strengthen quality of care, support workforce development, enhance operational and financial capacity, and ensure health centers remain essential access points for patients statewide. Her leadership background positions her to accelerate TPCA’s strategic priorities and deepen its impact.

“Health centers are trusted providers and essential anchors in communities across Tennessee,” said Ms. Moore. “TPCA serves as a vital connector, advocate, and capacity builder, and I am honored to join the organization in supporting our members as they expand access to high-quality, affordable care for all Tennesseans.”

Ms. Moore holds a Juris Doctor from Michigan State University and a Bachelor of Arts in Speech Pathology and Special Education from Shaw University. She is widely recognized for advancing organizational performance, elevating quality outcomes, and building resilient, mission-driven teams. Known for fostering innovation and measurable impact, Ms. Moore brings a strong commitment to service, community partnership, and a collaborative leadership approach.

About the Tennessee Primary Care Association

The Tennessee Primary Care Association (TPCA) is the nonprofit membership association representing the state's 30 health centers. Tennessee's health centers provide comprehensive primary care services to 437,699 patients across all 95 counties. TPCA equips its members through policy and advocacy, consultation, resources, and strategic support, ensuring they remain trusted providers and essential anchors in their communities. By connecting health centers, fostering collaboration, and advancing access to affordable, high-quality, whole-person care, TPCA helps Tennesseans get the care they need.

Learn more at www.tnpca.org