What is a Health Center?

For more than 50 years, the nation's network of nearly 1,500 health centers have served as the health care home for more than 32 million patients. Health centers break down barriers to care by serving all patients regardless of their insurance status or ability to pay. Health centers are experts at reaching beyond the clinic walls to address the barriers to health and well-being their patients face.

Health centers are consumer-driven and patient-centered organizations that serve as a comprehensive and cost effective primary health care option for America's most underserved communities. Health centers increase access to health care and provide integrated services based on the unique needs of the communities they serve.

There are four key components that define health centers and help them serve America's communities.

1

Located in Areas of High Need

Designated as medically underserved areas or populations by the federal government.

2

Comprehensive Set of Services

Based on community needs, health centers offer medical, dental, vision, behavioral health, and enabling services.

3

Open to Everyone

Regardless of insurance status or ability to pay, and sliding fee scale options are offered to low-income patients.

4

Patient-Majority Governing Boards

At least 51% of every health center's governing board must be made up of patients.
